treaty with Great Britain dated August 15, 1939. Great Britain agreed in that treaty to hasten to the military assistance of Poland "with all the support and assistance in its power" if Poland were attacked by Germany. With that assurance from Great Britain, Poland broke off negotiations with Germany. Germany did not understand the reason for Poland's sudden change of mind and decided to proceed with the terms of the arrangement agreed upon with Poland. That was the start of World War II.

Great Britain knowingly deceived Poland when Great Britain actually promised military assistance to Poland if Poland were attacked by Germany. Great Britain could not come to Poland's assistance and Great Britain knew it when Great Britain's offer of military assistance to Poland was made. Poland fell into Great Britain's trap and discontinued negotiations with the Germans.

Poland's unexplained discontinuance of negotiations with Germany to complete the Danzig Corridor agreement resulted in Germany's troops moving into the Danzig Corridor without an agreement with Poland. Great Britain knew exactly what would take place in that event, that it would mean the beginning of World War II. The rest is history. Talmudists ("Jews") of the world welcomed a war against Germany in 1939 to somehow crush the Nazi government as the Talmudists ("Jews") of the world crushed Germany in World War I in 1917 by railroading United States into the war in Europe as Great Britain's ally.

President Roosevelt tried his hardest in 1939 to railroad the United States into the war in Europe to accommodate Talmudists ("Jews") in the United States. Germany learned by experience in World War I that the entry of the United States into the war in Europe in 1939 could prove equally disastrous to Germany if the United States were railroaded into war in Europe as Great Britain's ally. Germany exercised extraordinary caution not to provide the United States with justification under international law to declare war against Germany. That situation presented President Roosevelt with a problem.

President Roosevelt decided if it were impossible for him to get into the war in Europe through the front door that he would railroad the United States into the war in Europe through the back door. Through the back door meant through Japan. President Roosevelt finally did railroad the United States into the war in Europe through the back door, through Japan.

Secretary of Defense Stimson states in his diary President Roosevelt told Cabinet two weeks before Pearl Harbor plan make Japan attack

Germany and Japan had a treaty under which if either Germany or Japan were attacked by a third power, the country which was not attacked by the third power automatically is at war with that third power. President Roosevelt planned to provoke Japan so Japan would attack the United States. Japan in December 1941 attacked Pearl Harbor. The United States immediately declared war against Japan and automatically was at war with Germany.

The personal diary of the Hon. Mr. Henry L. Stimson and all his papers are in Yale University library. Mr. Stimson each day entered in his personal diary in his own handwriting the important events in his life that day. Mr. Stimson was President Roosevelt's Secretary of Defense. Mr. Stimson's diary was introduced as evidence in the United States Senate investigation of the Pearl Harbor attack by Japan over the strong objections of friends of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Stimson entered in his diary on November 25, 1941, two weeks before Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor, that at a meeting with President Roosevelt and his Cabinet that morning at the White House, President Roosevelt told those present that he wished to be at war against Japan but that he "did not want it to appear that the United States fired the first shot."

President Roosevelt provokes Pearl Harbor attack as only way United States can get into war in Europe against Germany to fulfill 1933 pledge

President Roosevelt knowingly provoked Japan to attack the United States. President Roosevelt advised Japan they could purchase no more steel scrap or oil from the United States. Japan was in the midst of a war against China. Without scrap steel and without oil Japan would be unable to continue that war. Japan was totally dependant upon the United States for both steel scrap and oil.

Professor Charles Callan Tansill, Professor of Diplomatic History at Georgetown University in Washington, wrote a classic work he called Back Door to War, published by Henry Regnery of Chicago in 1952. Professor Tansill spent five years after the war in the confidential files of the State Department doing research there on World War II. Professor Tansill's book has 652 pages all filled with alarming authenticated facts little known to the public during the war.

In a scholarly detailed manner easily understood, Professor Tansill supplies facts which are incontrovertible proof showing how President Roosevelt railroaded the United States into World War II in Europe. President Roosevelt's desire to please Talmudists ("Jews") among his friends influenced his better judgement. He overlooked that he was President of all the people of the United States.

President Roosevelt realized if he expected political support by Talmudists ("Jews") in the United States to continue he must find some way to railroad the United States into the war then in progress in Europe against Germany. Surely nobody can any longer question that railroading the United States into World War II was President Roosevelt's contribution to the desperate predicament in which the United States today finds itself in the Middle East.

President Harry S. Truman made his great contribution to the desperate predicament in which the United States today finds itself in the Middle East when he recognized as a sovereign state an armed uprising in Palestine by 800,000 armed aliens transplanted into Palestine in a conspiracy organized by Talmudists ("Jews") throughout the world. President Truman in 1946 suffered from a pathological obsession that he must be elected President of the United States in 1948 on his own account.

Mr. Clarke M. Clifford, Secretary of War under President Lyndon B. Johnson, deserves a great deal of credit for the recognition of the State of Israel on May 14, 1948 by the United States. Mr. Eliahu Epstein, the United States representative of the Jewish Agency in Washington in 1948, told the story in his three page article in the Jewish Chronicle of London in its 10th Anniversary issue of June 1949 in the Jewish Chronicle of London in its issue of June 1949 celebrating the 10th Anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel.

Mr. Clifford undoubtedly was anxious to help because President Truman had confided in his close friends that he wished to recognize the Zionist state in the "first hour of its birth" as he did. The State of Israel was officially "proclaimed" in Tel Aviv at midnight in May 14, 1948. President Truman recognized the birth of the State of Israel eleven minutes after midnight.

President Truman finally advised this author that he did not wish to carry on the discussion of the Zionist question with him any further. He wrote to this author that he had turned over "the entire Palestine question" to "the Hon. David Niles." Talmudists ("Jews") were willing to carry out their part of their bargain with President Truman after he recognized the State of Israel. Although the odds in President Truman's election in 1948 were 20 to 1 against his election, President Truman romped home the winner over Governor Dewey assisted by the invisible and invincible Zionist political steamroller that always elects their candidates.

President Truman not only used the power and prestige of the United States to compel the United Nations to admit the State of Israel as a peace loving nation, the regime of an armed uprising in Palestine by transplanted aliens, but he made billions of United States taxpayers dollars available to Talmudists ("Jews") to make the State of Israel powerful.

When the day to vote for the admission of the State of Israel arrived they were short two votes.

The plan was about to collapse. In the emergency, Mr. Charles H. Silver engaged Cardinal Spellman to make two trips to South America to change their votes in the United Nations against the admission of the State of Israel into the United Nations to votes in favor of the admission of the State of Israel into the United Nations as a member.

The newspapers around the world on June 11, 1964 published Mr. Silver's "confession" of a "secret I have kept for fifteen years." The "secret" Cardinal Spellman kept with Mr. Silver was that Cardinal Spellman was sent to South America by Mr. Silver on behalf of the Talmudists ("Jews") in New York to "persuade" the South American countries to change their votes against admitting the State of Israel to the United Nations to votes in favor of admitting the State of Israel to the United Nations as a member.

This author was a close personal friend of Cardinal Spellman for twenty-five years. Cardinal Spellman "confessed" to this author several years ago that he felt he had committed an irreparable sin by conspiring with the Talmudists ("Jews") in the United States to elect the State of Israel a member of the United Nations. In the midst of that bloody fighting in the Middle East June 1965, Cardinal Spellman told this author when alone with him in his study that he felt personally responsible for all the lives lost in the 1965 invasion of the United Arab Republic and Syria by the State of Israel.

President Eisenhower fulfills campaign pledges to Talmudists ("Jews") using army and navy under his vicious H. J. 117 Joint Resolution

The story of how President Dwight D. Eisenhower lied the United States into the desperate predicament in which the United States today finds itself in the Middle East is not a complicated story. Talmudists ("Jews") in the United States pressured President Eisenhower into sponsoring Joint Resolution by Congress of H. J. Res. 117, on January 5, 1950 which was then referred by Congress to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. President Eisenhower knew less about what he was then doing than a new born babe. It was pitiful for this author to witness a great General being figuratively pushed around by Talmudists ("Jews") unfit to shine his shoes.

President Eisenhower was always friendly towards this author. This author met President Eisenhower when he was being considered by Mr. Thomas M. Watson, Sr. as a Presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Watson was the founder of the International Business Machines Company. Mr. Watson told this author at that time that he believed General Eisenhower as a civilian would make a great president.
